Adding the houtes adioyning to the Portes in this Table contained, vnto the Moones comming to the South, produceth the tyme of the tide in that Port. Example, the Moone is 9 dapes old, now in this Table vnder the age of the Moone, I finde 9 in the first space, In so there I finde her coming to the South, at 7 and 12 min. Now for London, I finde it in the last space 3 houtes, which added to 7 houtes 12 min: maketh 10 houtes, 12 min: the water at lowe the same 9. day.

A briefe Declaration of the foure Quarters of this Yeare. 1629.

Sol in  $\text{\Psi}$ .  $\text{\omega}$ . and  $\text{\pi}$ .

Hereafter the Winter, the Spring, the Summer, and Haruest, shall not cease, so long as the earth remaineth.

Winter according to our English accoumpt began the 12. day of December 1628. the time of the Sunnes ingredience into that cold and dry igne Capricorne : at which time was þ Brum-mal Solitice or Shortest day in the yeare, by reason of the Sunnes greatest south declination from the Equinoctiall, &c. and continu-eth in this yeare 1629. vnto the 10. day of March the 12. houre 46. min. 33. secon.

The Winter season is cold and moist, and therefore encreaseth sleame, which is like in complexion vnto it : The diseases incident to this Winter quarter, is grieses in the sides, rhume, coughs, ioynt-ache, head-ache, and the stone, with paine in the necke, eyes, and legges.

A Prognostication.

A cold Winter and moist is profitable, yet too much moistnesse destroys the Winter-corne. A warme and moist Winter is unwholsome.

Sol in V. & and II.

The Lord God causeth Grasse to grow for the Cattle, and hearbes for the vse of man, that he may bring forth bread out of the earth.

The Sunne having finished the Winter quarter, with the last part of Pisces, doth at this time enter into the first minute of Aries, and doth make the artificiall day equall with the night. Sol reuineth the most delectable annuall revolution called the Spring, which wilbe this yeare, the i o. of March the 12. hours, 46. min. 23. sec.

The Sunne Plato affirmeth to bee the Soule of the World, and all living things to receive life from him, for all augmentations, increasements, and ripenesse of fruities, beasts, and other things vpon the earth, is of Sol, hee is also the giuer of times, and therefore at this time he reuineth the most temperate time, the Spring. This time increaseth blood, and bringeth all the points of the body to a temperate as nigh as it can: For it of all other times is is the most temperate, neyther excessive hot nor cold, neyther moist nor dry; and Galen doth much blame them that name it to be hot and moist, the which (he sayth) is of all other the most pestilent state of the ayre.

The diseases of the Spring is falling-sickenesse, the squinances, coughes, ache in the necks, belly, legs and feete.

A warme and moist spring is commendable, if the spring be dry and something warme, thereshall be but little scuite, yet very good, if cold the fruite will be rotten, and never come to good, nor be ripe.

of June, the 8. houre, 23. min. 10. sec. in the euening.

The summer is in complexion hot and dry, and therefore meete to increase choller, which at this time doth abound.

The diseases of the summer, are continuall feauers, paines in his head and belly, vomits, burning in the heart and brest, with immoderate sweating.

Much raine in summer putrifies the fruite, and there shall be no great store of graine, many diseases will follow, if it be suet drye, it argueth scarcity in all manner of graine; the summer fruite will bee wholsome, fishes shall dye, if over hot, there will bee many sicknesse, and store of fruite that summer.
(If to conclude) it be cold, the yeare will bee wholsome, but the fruite will bee late: so the elements must bee well temperated, else the earth cannot bee fruitfull.

If the summer bee bad, or any other season be bad, yet if our selues be good, all the better: good God, make vs more good, or at least less bad, aswell for thine owne glory, as for our owne safety.

A definition of Astronomy.

Astronomy is the perfect knowledge of the miraculous mouings of the Planets and Heauens, and specially of the Sunne and Moone, whereby is caused the variety of times, dayes, and yeares, and ages, and the diversity of all naturall things, as hot, cold, moist, and dry, which are augmented or diminished by the more or lesse influence of these two Luminaries, as they come neare vnto vs at sometime, or depart further from vs, at other times. With diuers motions, diuers climates, which causeth not onely variety of times in sundry climates, but also the variety of diuers complexions, formes, and dispositions of all creatures vnder the face of Heauen, none other accidentall conteng: voluntary, or violent cause, to the contrary notwithstanding. And this is that Plato meaneth by these Wordes. Ut tempus cognoscemus ac vniuersa natura ordinem, &c. That to know the times, and vniuersall order of Nature ; and doubtlesse who who so wel considereth the maruaillous effects that are caused, especially by the variable moving of the Sunne in the Zodiacke, must needes acknowledge it to be the chiefe instrument and meane that God useth in the generation, preseruation, and alteration of all Creatures that are contayned in the World, of generation and corruption. And for this cause and consideration certaine of the ancient Phylosophers called the Sunne, the soule of the World: Other the eye; and other also, the heart of the World: Plato affirmeth, that the sunne is the soule of the World, and that all other living things receiue life from him, and hereof is that saying: Sol & homo generant hominem, the sunne and man, beget man.

And also, by the motions of the Heavens, we have the distinct course of times, dayes, yeares, and ages, as well for the consideration of sacred Prophesies, accomplished in due time fore-told, as for high misticall solemnities holding; and for all other humaine assayres, conditions, and covenants vpon certayne time betweene man and man, with many other great uses.

To all things there is an appoynted time, and a time to euery purpose vnder the Sunne; a time to plant, and a time to plucke vp.
